National Academy of Public Administration Announces The 2017 Class of Academy Fellows

45 Leaders in Public Administration to Join the Academy

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- The National Academy of Public Administration today announced that 45 leaders in the field of public administration have been selected for the 2017 Class of Academy Fellows. Induction of the new Fellows will occur during the annual Academy Fall Meeting, which will take place November 16-17 in Washington, D.C.

“I am pleased to welcome this outstanding new group of Fellows during the Academy’s 50th anniversary year,” said Academy President and CEO Terry Gerton. “Our Fellows are nationally recognized for their contributions to the field of public administration and this year’s incoming class will be a tremendous asset to the Academy as we seek to make government work better, and work for all.”

Selection of the Academy’s new Fellows follows a rigorous review of the individual’s contributions to the field of public administration and policy. A Fellows Nominating Committee, selected by the Academy’s Board Chair, makes its recommendations to the full Fellowship, which then votes on those individuals nominated to be a Fellow. The Committee was chaired by Dr. David E. Lewis, Professor and Chair, Department of Political Science, Vanderbilt University.

The 2017 class joins more than 850 Academy Fellows -- including former cabinet officers, members of Congress, governors, mayors, and state legislators, as well as prominent scholars, business executives, and public administrators. Below is the list of new Academy Fellows:
