National Academy of Public Administration To Launch New Podcast, “Management Matters”

Podcast to Premiere June 1; Will Feature Experts on Public Administration Challenges

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The National Academy of Public Administration today announced that it will launch a new podcast, Management Matters, to discuss public administration’s most significant challenges with experts from the public, private, non-profit and academic sectors. The podcast will premiere on June 1 on Apple Podcasts, Spotify, Google Podcasts, and other mainstream podcast platforms.

“We are very excited to launch a new and innovative way to discuss the latest public administration challenges facing governments at every level,” said Terry Gerton, President and CEO of the Academy. “The Management Matters podcast will offer listeners insights on current government challenges from some of our expert Academy Fellows, many of whom have spent decades in public service wrestling with similar issues and can offer recommendations for effective solutions that connect policy and practice. Now more than ever, government management does matter, and we hope to continue to impact efforts to improve government through this new medium.”

The June 1 inaugural episode of Management Matters will feature a conversation between host Terry Gerton, Academy President and CEO, Jeff Neal, Chairman of the Academy’s Board of Directors, and Dr. Joe Mitchell, the Academy’s Director of Strategic Initiatives and International Programs.

New episodes of Management Matters podcast will air regularly, with the following episodes scheduled for June and July:
